Leapfrog leapstart 3d reviews

The LeapFrog LeapStart 3D Interactive Learning System is designed for children aged 2-7 years and is perfect for promoting interactive play. If your child likes to read, write and play games, the LeapStart 3D is right in the alley! LeapFrog LeapStart 3D review I have been testing the LeapFrog LeapStart 3D for a few weeks with my two daughters, aged 5 (Haddie) and 3 (Audrey). Both are academic at different levels with Haddie in kindergarten and know how to read basic words and write simple sentences. Audrey likes to listen to stories or make her own. Although the girls are in different stages, both enjoy the magical screen aka pop-up holographic screen. Read on to see our full LeapStart 3D report. What I really like about LeapStart 3D is that it's really suitable for young people. Audrey is more than able to use this unsupported and understands some of the simpler interactive aspects of each book. While older children (kindergarten and elementary school) can read the stories while taking advantage of the interactive features. LeapStart 3D Features Using LeapStart books allows children to bring their favorite characters and objects to life with amazing 3D-like holographic animations. But it also offers so much more than story time, here are some other LeapStart 3D features that your child might enjoy. Stylus – the Grow-with-me-Stylus is the perfect size for small hands. It helps to optimize coarse motor skills by writing the right handle with small rubber pads for learning. In addition to support with pencil handle, the pen can also read the dotted letters on pages to help children learn the correct order of strokes. For parents of younger children, the pen is attached so that it cannot be lost. LeapFrog have also thought about the position that the pen is secured, it is fixed in the middle so that it is suitable for left and right-handed children. 3D - the holographic screen is fantastic. Children can see their favorite characters come to life by touching different parts of the story with the pen. Volume – There is a volume button so you can increase or decrease to your preferred level. That's important to me and I'm sure a lot of other parents. Portable - the LeapStart 3D is lightweight (1.17kg) and portable. These folds closed with the pin cut off inside and has a comfortable carrying handle for children on the go. Batteries – this only needs 2x AA batteries to run. We've been using this nonstop for a few weeks and the batteries aren't showing any signs that they're going flat. The LeapStart 3D switches off even after 5 batteries are not emptied if the little ones forget to turn it off. *Batteries not included. Activities - each book is packed with over 30 activities. These include games, jokes and songs that come to life, entice children to chase numbers, hunt for letters, compose their own music and creative creative Problem solving puzzles, math labyrinths and more. Key concepts – in addition to the above activities, each book also provides a comprehensive introduction to the key concepts that are appropriate for each level of learning. These concepts help teach children over 50 key skills and seamlessly blend fun with skills ranging from problem solving to learning to read. Concepts include: o Reading Comprehension o Reading for Information o Reading Fluency o Phonics o Mathematical Reasoning o Problem Solving o Creative Expression o Visual Puzzles o Social Skills o Spelling The LeapStart 3D is an interactive book for children aged 2-7 years. With a special pen, your child can point to things in the compatible LeapStart books and they will read or describe what it suggests to provide them with an interactive experience off a large screen. Books with their favorite characters, from Paw Patrol to Disney Princesses, contain games and challenges that promote a whole range of skills, including math, writing, reading, matching and problem solving. The LeapStart 3D is slightly larger than the standard LeapStart and has a pull-out handle. It has an additional function for LeapStart because it has a small screen that projects a holographic image onto a mirror above when reading special LeapStart 3D books. Our new LeapStart 3D arrived on vacation and was out of the package before I was in the door. The first thing to note is that it requires 2xAA batteries. Why am I saying the obvious? Well, because when I unpacked it (after, in my defence, a very long journey back from Devon) I put it in to charge it overnight before I realized in the morning (if it didn't work) that it actually needed 2 AA batteries and I had connected it to the data micro USB post. Clever Fran. You need the cable to connect it to your computer to download the audio and video content for all the books you may have (the sampler book is pre-downloaded). It's easy to do even though you need to create a Leapfrog account if you don't already have one. The prompts will guide you through the rest of the setup. The LeapStart 3D comes with a preschool/primary school age sampler book that is preloaded. You can interact with the small alien characters (who sing the alphabet or notes on a piano depending on the mode) and intergalactic space racing game on the inside of the hard plastic cover. The purple button turns it on/off and the pink button changes the volume. The book itself gives a preview of books that you can buy for your LeapStart 3D. The books slot into the book with the tie rings that fit on small clips on the spine, which is done by tightly pushing. To get rid of it, drag the book, with the finger to expand the space between the spirals. You can only have one book installed at a time. The pen/pen is designed for small hands and is chunky with handle on both sides. The spring of the special pen is hard and it is easy to get the cardboard through too hard, so make sure you emphasize to your child how important it is to be careful! The LeapStart 3D is compatible with all LeapStart books, but only LeapStart 3D books have animations. Books are available in three stages from preschool (2-5 years and 3-6 years) to primary school (4-7 years). Each book is designed to help with a specific skill. The Around Town with Paw Patrol LeapStart 3D book is a Level 2 book for 3-6 year olds that teaches jobs, places and problem solving. The Paw Patrol book has 31 pages, and a page with stickers at the end. There is a new activity on each side or double page, and each has two games, which means over 30 activities in total. Touch the green star with the pen for the simple level or two orange stars for a tougher challenge that can earn you a sticker for your reward chart. Place the pen on the blue light bulb for a hint and the red hand to stop the game. As a massive Paw Patrol fan, my youngest (3) was able to go through the first challenge, in which the puppies were identified by a description. Some of the challenges were similarly simple for him; Find objects and solve problems. Others, such as the following directions, were more difficult, but my eldest (almost 5) was able to overcome most of the challenges. Concentrated hard! The small animations of the puppies and icons are beautiful; they don't appear very often and not on every page as I might have expected. There were more animations in the PJ Masks Moonlight Maths game that we got for this post (although the book wasn't a 3D game!) and more music too; and I think this tipped the balance in favor of the game via the Paw Patrol (but only just). It's a nice addition when the little pictures pop up, but I wouldn't say it's a necessity or worth paying a premium above the standard LeapStart based on the animations in the Paw Patrol game. Overall, however, there are a lot of positives about the LeapStart 3D. First of all, it is a great alternative to tablets and TV time, still interactive enough to have fun and keep the attention of young children. It encourages them to listen and focus on how to follow the instructions to win the games, and the games themselves are cleverly designed to teach a whole range of skills while having fun. Both kids had fun with the LeapStart 3D and I think they're a great idea; they are happy to sit quietly and play for a while, which feels much better to me than to park them in front of a screen when I need to do something. We will definitely be looking for a good offer on some of the Level 3 (Age 4-7) reading and writing games for my elders who have just to begin. The LeapStart 3D is available in blue and green or pink and purple. It costs around US 50 US dollars and is available from national retailers or online on Amazon via the links below. Games become individually more expensive. We received this Leapfrog LeapStart 3D as part of the LeapFrog Play Panel. All pictures and words are mine.
